

NEW GREEK & TURKISH RESTAURANT

Symrna has taken over the Spalti location at 417 California Ave. in Palo Alto. The name comes from an ancient city along the coast of Anatolia, known today as Izmir.

Ayhan, owner of Spalti, is partnering with Zubi, the owner of Urfa Bistro in Los Altos, and changing the restaurant concept to focus on Turkish-Greek cuisine from the ancient city. Executive Chef Memet Duygu, who heads the kitchen at Urfa Bistro, has 20 years of experience in Mediterranean cuisine and is excited to share traditional Greek-Turkish recipes. A favorite on the menu is the Branzino from the coast of Turkey, delivered daily and served whole with Israeli couscous, kale, cherry tomatoes, Spanish saffron and white wild lemon sauce. Dinner service is from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m., and extended dining times will be announced in the future. For more reservations, call (650) 521-0955.

AVENIDAS CARE FORUM. For families caring for loved ones, getting information and support is important, which is why Avenidas is offering a new workshop series.

Following each lecture, attendees may take part in small group discussions and have the chance to receive gifts and wellness services donated by event sponsors. Coffee and lunch will be provided. The next workshop, "Caregiving Conversations About Quality of Life and Treatment Options," is on June 1. The presenters will be Dr. Ellen Brown (at right in photo), Rita Ghatak, Ph.D. (at left in photo), and social worker Paula Wolfson. For more information or to sign up, call (650) 289-5438 or visit Avenidas' website.
